Echoes of a Festival: Celebrating 50 years of Kilkenny Arts Festival

In 1974, artists and members of the local community came together with the idea of bringing world-class artists from all over the globe to Kilkenny, making the Marble City the centre of the arts world every August.

This year, as we celebrate the Festival's 50th edition, we're looking back, and we're asking you to do the same! Whether you're an audience member, an artist, a volunteer or a member of the local community, we'd love to hear from you. You might have a memory of an unforgettable performance, a story about a meeting an inspiring artist, or simply cherished memories of the Festival's unique atmosphere. Whatever your recollections, we'd love to hear them all.

These memories will be included both in an online display (available from the beginning of August) and in an audio-visual installation accompanying an exhibition of 50 years of Festival programmes and design, running in Shee Alms House throughout the Festival.

Participants can share their memories in various forms: written accounts, voice notes, or video clips. Contributions can be sent via email to friends@kilkennyarts.ie (deadline: 24 July).

To help gather these precious memories, we'll be hosting a special afternoon dedicated to collecting your thoughts at the Smithwick's Experience on Saturday 1 July. Festival-goers and local residents are warmly invited to join us to share their personal experiences and tales from the Festival's past.

Introduction

We're delighted to welcome you to the 50th edition of Kilkenny Arts Festival. From classical music to contemporary dance, visual art to immersive theatre, this edition of our Festival is designed to thrill, delight and inspire.

Our 50th Festival kicks off with a special audio-visual installation projected on the walls of Kilkenny Castle. Inspired by Damien Harrington (who designed our first logo), In Good Hands is a spectacular tribute to the beauty of handmade art and design. Just as spectacular is the new luminarium – a giant inflatable structure designed for kids big and small – that rises in Kilkenny Castle Parklands.

Music has been at the forefront of the Festival from its inception, and this year is no exception. We're thrilled to welcome back Irish Chamber Orchestra for two concerts in St Canice's Cathedral, including a collaboration with Radiohead's Philip Selway. Our classical programme also features Chamber Choir Ireland performing the Irish premiere of Rhona Clarke's Requiem, the return of Barry Douglas, and a collaboration with the RTÉ Concert Orchestra that sees Iarla Ó Lionáird and Ciarán Hinds perform a song cycle based on Seamus Heaney's Sweeney Astray. All this, plus lunchtime concerts from Camerata Kilkenny and the Carducci Quartet, and a late-night performance from viola da gamba virtuoso Lixsania Fernández.

Other musical highlights include Grammy Award-winner Oumou Sangaré blending Afro-pop, folk rock and blues, the Rollercoaster Sessions with its diverse array of local and international acts, and a terrific line-up for the Marble City Sessions, co-curated by Martin Hayes. Crash Ensemble return for a three-concert residency, while Dave Holland's Wicked Little Atoms in The Fragments of the Long Waves (which KAF commissioned) premieres in Cleere's. And be sure to look out for the Secret Garden Music series, free each day across special spaces in the city.

We're excited to work with two local theatre companies. Festival favourites Asylum Productions bring together actors, community groups and professional artists to present The Local, an immersive experience set in a pub in 1992. Barnstorm Theatre bring three new plays to benches around Kilkenny. Speaking of benches, we also welcome Tink Flaherty, accompanied by their very own bench, for a multi-sensory show in Cleere's. Since last autumn we've been working with members of migrant communities based in Kilkenny, and the incomparable John Scott of Irish Modern Dance Theatre, to create Migration Sonata, a rich blend of movement and song exploring our similarities and differences.

To commemorate the tenth anniversary of the death of Seamus Heaney, we present a three-part series of discussions and readings from the poet's celebrated translations. Our poet-in-residence this year is the distinguished Kwame Dawes, while acclaimed journalist Ben Judah delivers the 2023 Hubert Butler Lecture and the Hubert Butler Essay Prize is presented in the Parade Tower alongside an exciting line-up of talks.

The Butler Gallery exhibition, featuring a stellar line-up of artists, explores the relationship between art and sport, while the Festival Gallery plays host to the work of fresh new talent Deirdre Frost. From the castle to the cathedral, the Marble City is the place to be this August. See you there!

ARCHITECTS OF AIR

Timisien

After a five-year break, Architects of Air make an eagerly anticipated return to the Castle Park with their latest spectacular luminarium, Timisien.

A luminarium is a giant inflatable sculpture: a place filled with colour, shape and light and a place for people of all ages and backgrounds to meet. Imagine wandering inside a giant balloon filled with breathtaking chambers and maze-like passages.

Inspired by many different styles (including traditional Islamic architecture and Gaudi's Palau Güell in Barcelona), Timisien is the perfect place to roam, relax and discover your sense of wonder – an experience not to be missed!

The luminarium is wheelchair accessible.

Children under 16 must be accompanied by an adult.

Light Up the Castle: In Good Hands

Light Up the Castle: In Good Hands is a spectacular audio-visual show projecting images onto the walls of Kilkenny Castle, featuring a handmade short film specially created for the Festival by Wicklow-based Fictions Picture Company and directed by Jack Phelan.

Inspired by Damien Harrington (who designed the original Festival logo in 1974), the film celebrates the graphic artists who made everything by hand before computers came along. Projected onto the walls of the castle as night falls, and featuring music from Roamer and Ensemble Ériu, In Good Hands is a breathtaking tribute to the beauty of handmade art and design.

Please note: the installation features strobe lighting. Latecomers will not be admitted. Wheelchair users are advised to contact the Festival Box Office before the show. Gates open at 10.15pm at the Parade entrance.

The Local

By Medb Lambert, Clare Monnelly & Emma O'Grady

Directed by Dónal Gallagher

There's 50p on the pool table, Sinéad is ripping up the Pope, Féile's going to get messy and Ireland is on the brink of cataclysmic social change...

The Local is an immersive soap opera. It's 22 August 1992. The pub is the epicentre of Irish culture. Ireland is a drunken teenager.

We're about to grow up and leave home and take responsibility for ourselves. The craic is exponential and the only way is up.

Little did we know we were heading for a crash. We should have seen it coming. Following on from the success of the award-winning Big Chapel X, Asylum Productions return with their unique production style bringing local actors, community groups and professional performers and artists together.

Please note: Not suitable for U16's. 16 and 17 year olds need to be accompanied by an adult.

BARNSTORM THEATRE AND KILKENNY ARTS FESTIVAL

Bench Tales

Barnstorm Theatre presents an exciting new trilogy of plays that turns the audience into sleuths and spies.

Each play takes place around a different park bench in a different part of the city. The audience is led from one location to the next, eavesdropping on the action from a distance with the aid of earphones and binoculars. Both intimate and distant, high-tech and laidback, the Bench Tales trilogy is a fascinating new way to experience live theatre.

Please note: this is a standing event. One ticket covers all three shows.

Pink Makes the Boys Wink

By Julie Sharkey

Pink Makes the Boys Wink is a comic, full-of-heart story about getting old. How time can creep up on us and take us by surprise. A story about three women: one woman's compassion, one woman's fear and one woman's joy in Hello magazine.

There is Always Tomorrow

By Joe Bergin

A chance meeting between a young woman and an older man on a park bench may not be all that it seems. Why has Emma come here and what is she looking for? As she attempts to uncover the truth, is she fully prepared for what she might find?

The Last Trip to Tipp

By Gemma Creagh

It's 1994. Lorraine, Emma and Mairead are three friends heading in very different directions. Well, not literally. Right now they're all on their way to Féile, and with a line-up like Crowded House, Primal Scream, The Prodigy, The Cranberries, Björk and Blur the craic will be fierce. With one mouldy tent, ancient sleeping bags and a fine slab of Linden Village cans, they wait on a lift from their flaky friend, Suzanne – who's late as usual.

Benched is a one-person show with a concept so simple it's almost revolutionary. Tink takes a bench to a public location and invites strangers to sit with them, sharing stories and making connections. The stories that arise from these intimate, one-to-one encounters are then woven into their show.

Tink is a queer, non-binary and neurodivergent artist from the north of England, with Irish Traveller heritage. Since 2018 Benched has been performed all over the UK to great acclaim, and we're thrilled to welcome Tink to Kilkenny. Sometimes cheeky, sometimes shocking, Benched is a multi-sensory show that explores powerful themes of class, gender and neurodivergence with humour and hope.

IRISH MODERN DANCE THEATRE AND KILKENNY ARTS FESTIVAL

Migration Sonata

John Scott's Irish Modern Dance Theatre is one of the most acclaimed dance companies in Ireland, celebrated for developing breathtakingly original new works in collaboration with a wide range of people, from leading Irish and international dancers to refugees and torture survivors.

Their previous shows in Kilkenny (the Lear Project in 2014, and Interventions in 2018), featuring legendary New York dancer Valda Setterfield, were must-see events.

For this new piece, Migration Sonata, which has been workshopped in Kilkenny since October 2022, Scott brings together members of the migrant community in Kilkenny, creating a profound and moving exploration of our similarities and differences through a rich blend of movement and song.

Ireland's dance landscape has been given a splash of colour by iconoclast John Scott, spearheading Irish Modern Dance Theatre, a group which has already become something of a national institution

with Irish Chamber Orchestra

Philip Selway may be best known as the drummer in Radiohead but, like his bandmates, he has spread his wings in recent years. A multi-talented composer, singer and performer, he's scored soundtracks for film and dance projects and released a string of well-received albums that blend everything from contemporary classical music to electronica.

His latest album, Strange Dance, is a collection of intimate songs wrapped around his mellow voice, and St Canice's is the perfect setting for Selway's rich orchestral soundscapes. Joined by a stellar cast of musicians including Adrian Utley, Quinta, Chris Vatalaro, Laura Moody and members of the ICO, Selway shows just why he deserves to take centre stage.

For this concert in St John's, Fernández explores the work of José Marín. A Spanish baroque harpist, guitarist and composer, Marín led a turbulent life marked by scandals and murder but remains famous for his tonos humanos or 'secular songs'. Concerned almost exclusively with love, sex and longing, the tonos humanos are playful, poignant, teasing and tormented, and celebrated for their enduring melodic charm.

Seamus Heaney performed at our very first Festival in 1974, and this year, to mark the 10th anniversary of his death, the RTÉ Concert Orchestra presents Sweeney, a song cycle based on his poem Sweeney Astray.

Heaney's poem is a version of the seventh-century Irish saga, Buile Shuibhne, a poem about the clash between the natural and man-made world, and the role of race, religion and family, that still speaks to us today.

Composed by Neil Martin and conducted by David Brophy, with vocals from Iarla Ó Lionáird and narration by Ciarán Hinds, Sweeney brings Heaney's words to life in a memorable tribute to one of Ireland's greatest poets.

LUNCHTIME MUSIC SERIES

Carducci String Quartet

The Carducci String Quartet's presentation of the complete cycle of Shostakovich string quartets was one of the highlights of last year's Festival and it's a pleasure to welcome them back this year with a very different series of lunchtime concerts in St John's.

This year, the quartet showcases its astonishingly diverse repertoire, performing pieces by everyone from Beethoven, Haydn and Mendelssohn to the contemporary American composers Philip Glass and Caroline Shaw, as well as Astor Piazzolla, whose wonderfully stirring and dramatic Four, for Tango, rounds off the final concert in style.

Led by Grammy-winning Artistic Director, Paul Hillier, Chamber Choir Ireland finds light in the dark with In Paradisum, a programme of deeply spiritual works. Hillier is one of Arvo Pärt's most celebrated interpreters, and the programme opens with two works by the famed Estonian composer: Morning Star and O Holy Father Nicholas.

The centrepiece of this programme is the Irish premiere of Rhona Clarke's Requiem, a work that embraces redemption, while Caroline Shaw's mesmerising How to fold the wind – co-commissioned by the Festival, Chamber Choir Ireland, Carnegie Hall, Ars Nova Copenhagen and Bella Voce, and originally intended as a world premiere at KAFX – is finally performed live for a Kilkenny audience.

Over the years many Malian artists have graced our Festival stages, but few with the stature of Oumou Sangaré. Since her debut album Moussoulou in 1989, Sangaré has become a global superstar and feminist icon, celebrated for making some of the most definitive albums in the history of contemporary African music.

Her latest album, Timbuktu, is her 'boldest and most ambitious album to date' (Uncut), effortlessly melding the hypnotic rhythms of her native Wassoulou region with Afro-pop, folk-rock and fuzzy blues guitars, all carried by her extraordinary voice. Backed by a seven-piece band, Sangaré's appearance in St Canice's is one of this year's must-see gigs.

Ichiko Aoba with Crash Ensemble

Japanese virtuoso Ichiko Aoba is a uniquely talented vocalist and guitarist whose music sits in a sweet spot between folk, indie, classical, jazz and pop. Since 2010 she has released half a dozen albums, written music for video games, theatre productions and installation art and collaborated with artists as diverse as Cornelius, Mac DeMarco and Ryuichi Sakamoto. But it was her seventh studio album, last year's Windswept Adan, that saw her music finally receive the international recognition it deserves. For this gig in the Set, Aoba is joined by a quintet of Crash Ensemble musicians to perform fresh arrangements of her delicate, haunting songs. Don't miss this chance to catch a true original.

ONCE OFF PRODUCTIONS PRESENTS

Manchán Magan & Other World Slí na Samhlaíochta

Slí na Samhlaíochta (The Way of Imagination) is a lyrical and musical exploration of the realms of Gaelic consciousness that often evade our rational, reasoning minds.

Accompanied by the Other World collective (ambient musicians Myles O'Reilly, Robbie Perry and Simon O'Reilly, with Crosby Dunkley on live visuals), Manchán Magan guides us on a journey into the spiritual expanses of the Gaelic world, exploring myth and mystery, reflecting on insights that the Irish language offers into nature and landscape, and delving deep into the Otherworld. Join Magan and Other World as they seek out the solace and euphoria encoded within our ancient lore and land.

Dónal Dineen's Backstory

The first weekend of the Festival kicks off in style as Dónal Dineen brings his wildly popular club night to the Set. Conceived in 2015 as a place to gather the sounds he was collecting from all over the world, Backstory has become the stuff of legend, a place for discerning dancers to discover the thrill of new music together on the dance floor. Packed with incendiary tunes from South America, Africa, the Caribbean and elsewhere, Backstory is the perfect way to get the party started.

Katie Kim & Elaine Howley

Katie Kim is that rare thing: a genuine auteur, celebrated for conjuring dark, cinematic landscapes. Kim brings a full band to the Set to perform her latest album, Hour of the Ox. This gig is accompanied by an experimental new documentary about the making of Kim's acclaimed album.

Elaine Howley is a singular voice in the Irish underground. Her acclaimed album The Distance Between Heart and Mouth recreates the intimacy of a radio show, effortlessly joining the dots between pop and experimentation.

Indie-folk singer, songwriter, guitarist and producer Josienne Clarke is an artist who follows her own compass. Blessed with a beautiful voice, the BBC Folk Award-winner is equally at home performing a cover of Radiohead or her own compositions. Her latest album, Onliness, bears the influence of everyone from The Beastie Boys to Phoebe Bridgers, running the gamut of emotions from euphoria to fury and stretching indie folk in new directions. Her stagecraft has been honed supporting folk legend Richard Thompson and, backed by a full band, she is sure to go down a storm.

David MacGregor cut his songwriting teeth in alt-pop darlings Kid Canaveral. In 2019 he reinvented himself as Broken Chanter with a critically acclaimed solo debut that showcased his songwriting skills and unwavering ear for a tune. His latest album, Catastrophe Hits, finds MacGregor kicking back against humanity's apparent slide towards disaster with scathing humour and a rousing chorus or three. For this gig in Cleere's the addition of a full band gives MacGregor a chance to let rip. The apocalypse has never sounded so good!

MARBLE CITY SESSIONS

Iarla Ó Lionáird, Cormac McCarthy & Matthew Berrill

Since an iconic recording of 'Aisling Gheal' introduced his uniquely expressive voice to the world, Iarla Ó Lionáird has defied categorisation. Vocalist with the critically acclaimed Irish-American band The Gloaming, he is equally at home on the classical stage or working with new music composers like Donnacha Dennehy, Kate Moore, Nico Muhly, Linda Buckley, Gavin Bryars and David Lang.

For this concert exploring his rich and varied repertoire, Ó Lionáird is joined by two equally talented musicians whose music effortlessly straddles genres: renowned pianist/composer Cormac McCarthy and acclaimed clarinet maestro Matthew Berrill.

Brìghde Chaimbeul

The Festival has hosted many wonderful uilleann pipers over the years, but Scottish pipers have been rarer, so we're delighted to welcome Brìghde Chaimbeul: an exciting young talent who has devised a completely new way of arranging for the smallpipes (a bellows-blown form of bagpipe). She unveiled her unique sound on her debut album, The Reeling, earning five-star reviews and a BBC Radio 2 Folk Award, and since then she's worked with everyone from Lankum's Radie Peat to Canadian saxophonist Colin Stetson. With a new album, Carry Them with Us, released earlier this year, Chaimbeul showcases her mesmerizing sound in the haunting surroundings of Rothe House.

Caoimhín Ó Raghallaigh and Dan Trueman

Whether performing solo, in a duo, or in bands like The Gloaming, Caoimhín Ó Raghallaigh is celebrated for his restless innovation, taking traditional fiddle playing in new directions. His groundbreaking partnership with composer and fiddle player Dan Trueman made its debut at KAF 2014, where the duo launched their debut album Laghdú, and we're excited to welcome them back with material from their new album The Fate of Bones.

Both musicians play Hardanger d'Amoré fiddles, a new kind of instrument that sits somewhere between the Norwegian hardanger fiddle and the baroque viola d'amore. Together, they stretch the DNA of the fiddle tradition, creating something new, sparse and stunning.

SJ Fowler text

Crash Ensemble kick off their residency at this year's Festival with this eagerly anticipated double bill featuring two extraordinary talents: Diamanda La Berge Dramm and Sam Amidon.

A composer, vocalist and violin virtuoso, Dramm creates music that soars across the boundary between classical and alt pop. Chimp, her first album of original material, was released last year to rapturous reviews, earning comparisons with Joanna Newsom and Björk, and for this concert Dramm performs the album in full. Featured alongside Dramm's arrangements are reimaginings of the songs by Barry O'Halpin for Crash Ensemble.

Sam Amidon's appearance with Crash Ensemble was one of the highlights of KAF 2017, and for the second half of this double-bill, Amidon is joined by a quartet from Crash, the perfect foil for his beautifully crafted Americana.

POET IN RESIDENCE

Reflections on Voice and Responsibility in Poetry

...so much depends upon
'the speaker'

Since Progeny of Air won the Forward Prize for Best First Collection in 1994, Kwame Dawes has never looked back. In a prolific career he has published 36 books of poetry, fiction, criticism and essays, an acclaimed study of Bob Marley's lyrics, and 15 plays. His long poem 'Inheritance' won a Pushcart Prize in 2001 and he was awarded the Windham-Campbell Prize for Poetry in 2018. His interactive site LiveHopeLove.com, based on his Pulitzer Center project HOPE: Living and loving with AIDS in Jamaica, won numerous awards including an Emmy.

Now a Chancellor of the Academy of American Poets, Dawes comes to Kilkenny to deliver this year's masterclass exploring the murky waters of voice in language. What happens when we remove the 'I' from a line of poetry, or from other lines? What do we gain, and might others lose?

Mary Clayton with Olivia O'Leary

Beowulf, the epic tale of a Danish hero and his struggle with the monster Grendel, is the greatest surviving work of literature in Old English, unmatched in grandeur and scope. The task of translating it into modern English was daunting, but Heaney undertook it with relish, and his version was met with widespread acclaim. For this second event in our Heaney Translations series, Mary Clayton considers his retelling of one of the masterpieces of world literature.

Nicole Flattery & Cristín Leach IN CONVERSATION

With her debut novel, Nothing Special, Nicole Flattery has established herself as one of Ireland's most exciting and versatile writers. The novel imagines the lives of two young women transcribing events at the Factory, Andy Warhol's studio in New York. Their work was later published as A: A Novel, with Warhol's name on the cover, but the names of the women who created it were erased. Flattery joins art critic and broadcaster Cristín Leach to talk about her fascination with the Factory and the challenge of imagining the lives of women written out of history.

THE HUBERT BUTLER ANNUAL LECTURE

Ben Judah

'I don't trust statistics,' Ben Judah has written. 'I have to see everything for myself.' Over the last decade, Judah has set out to do just that, criss-crossing Russia interviewing mobsters and government officials for Fragile Empire, his portrait of Putin's rise to power, and spending thousands of hours listening to everyone from the rich in Knightsbridge to the homeless sleeping in an underpass for his book This is London, which was shortlisted for the Baillie Gifford Prize.

For his new book, This is Europe, Judah applied the same approach to a whole continent, travelling from Ireland to Turkey and back, listening to the stories of ordinary people. The result is an epic work of compassion that reveals a continent transformed by diversity, migration, war, climate change, Covid and the quest for freedom. For this year's Hubert Butler Lecture, Judah shares his wealth of experiences, asking what it means to call ourselves European today.

The Hubert Butler Annual Lecture was established by the Festival in 2007 to honour the Kilkenny writer, historian and broadcaster whose remarkable consistency of vision and clarity of mind made him unique among 20th-century essayists.

Big Crush

This body of paintings looks at the phenomenon of desire, considering how it shapes the world in which we live. The work has been made in the context of a daily newsfeed reeling from Brexit, the pandemic, climate change, material and plastic waste, healthcare crisis, housing crisis and war. The artist employs everyday imagery, including buildings and flora, which she imbues with a sense of a larger world in crisis.

Deirdre Frost is an artist based in Cork. Since graduation from the Crawford College of Art and Design in 2020 she has had numerous solo exhibitions and awards, and her work was included in the Butler Gallery exhibition Generation 2022: New Irish Painting. Research leading to this body of work was supported by the Arts Council Agility Award 2022.
